WAR FLYERS
TELL COURT
REAL FACTSRickenbacker Says U.
S. Ranks Eighth in Air
Powers of Nations

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The defense notified the Mitchell court martial today that it expected to complete presentation of its evidence tomorrow, except for the testimony Colonel William Mitchell will give in his own behalf.

Representative F. R. Reid, chief defense counsel indicated that the Colonel would require about two days for his testimony.

Reid M. Chambers of Detroit, who won numerous decorations as an aviator in France, testified at today's session that his plane never had been hit by enemy ground guns, although it had been within their range several hundred hours. He declared reserve air officers should be given at least 100 hours flying a year.

Lieut. Leight Wade, one of the Army world fliers, told the court of various experiences during his 3,000 hours flying in every type of plane known to any aviation personnel.

Regarding the Leaning Amphibian machine, he said it was in the experimental stage and not, in his opinion, suited for Arctic service.

Turning to the world flight he said he believed the circumstances which attended the hop from Scapa Flow to Iceland constituted "an undue hazard of human life."

Lieut. Wade replied in the affirmative when asked whether he was "contingently leaving the Army air service."

"Why?"

"I feel there is very little opportunity offered me."

Eddie Rickenbacker Talks.

Edward Rickenbacker of Detroit, another world war aviator testified that in his opinion anti-aircraft guns do not protect against air attacks.

Asked if it was dangerous to send men into the air without parachutes, Rickenbacker said:

"Suicide."

"It is dangerous to use war time materials."

"The grave yards about the country show it."

Rickenbacker said the United States ranked eighth in air power, behind France, Great Britain, Italy, Germany, Russia, Japan and Poland.

ILLINOIS HIGHWAY
PLAN GREATEST IN
THE ENTIRE NATIONGov. Small Says Present
Plan is Only One That Would Build System

Shelbyville, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Illinois plan of building hard roads was characterized as the greatest in the nation by Governor Len Small at a celebration here of the completion of routes 16 and 32.

"It is said there are 18,000,000 automobiles in the world," Governor Small said, "and that 1,100,000 of them are owned in Illinois. Whether or not we approve of this enormous investment in automobiles, we all like to own a car and ride on concrete roads. So I want to say right here that I believe we have the greatest, and by far, the best plan for building a complete state highway system that has ever been suggested. In fact I believe it is the only plan under which Illinois ever could have secured the great system of roads which we are now building."

"Completion of these two great concrete highways now connects Shelby county in every direction, with the world's greatest highway system. There are now completed on the bond issue system 4,256 miles, of which Shelby county has approximately 50 miles, costing about $1,475,560. And there are now provided in the new bond issue about forty miles more in Shelby county."

Thousands of motor cars poured into Shelbyville on concrete roads from four directions, as the celebration got under way.

Gov. Small was escorted into the city by an inter-county committee of 200. More than 1,000 cars left Mattoon and this number was augmented to 3,500 before reaching here. Patrols from as far north as Decatur report an unbroken stream of traffic. Similar reports reached here from Pana, Taylorville and other points west and south.

EX-KAISER LIVES
IN ALL THE POMP
OF EMPEROR DAYSWilliam and His Staff are
All in Full Uniform—
Friendly to England

London, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Doorn House, in Holland, where Former Emperor of Germany has his abode, may not be a palace, but nevertheless it is beautifully furnished and withal, it smacks of the regal. The one time ruler of Germany does not suggest the weary exile, pining to return to his homeland. Notwithstanding his white beard which becomes him well, he looks younger than he did in 1913, a year before the commencement of the world war, which culminated in his undoing.

This is what Alexander Montgomery Carlisle, an old time friend, who has paid a visit to Doorn House, has to say of William II. Mr. Carlisle said he stands erect, talks vivaciously and retains his old dignity and bearing. In his exile, William continues to wear his showy uniforms and decorations and there is much of the old Potsdam regality at Doorn House. Age has mellowed him somewhat and there appeared a tendency on his part to forget the bitterness of the world war.

It seemed natural, as his visitor was an Englishman, that William in his talk mostly referred to England for which he said he always had a friendly feeling.

"I am confident," William told Mr. Carlisle, "that if honest diplomacy had been used, and if certain members of the British cabinet had visited Berlin before the war, things would have been very different. To some extent, it was a war of lawyers, and I always have disliked the lawyer."

Mr. Carlisle described Princess Hermine, the wife of William, who was magnificently gowned when he saw her, as a charming woman and devoted to her husband. He said the two daughters of the Princess were splendid children and that the former emperor was most happy in the company of Hermine and the girls.

All the staff of William II at Doorn House wear full uniforms. His Lord Chamberlain was even more dignified than in the days at Potsdam before the war.

CAPTAIN FOLEY IN
DENIAL OF CHARGE
SWAYED TESTIMONY

Denies Allegations of Mrs. Lansdowne Regarding Shenandoah Probe

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—After two days of investigation the Shenandoah naval court of inquiry today heard from Captain Paul Foley his version of the incidents which led to the charge by Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne before the Mitchell court martial that he had sought to sway her testimony and prepared a statement which he expected her to read before the naval tribunal.

Made a party defendant by the court, Captain Foley appeared at his own request, the court being without the right to call him to the witness stand.

With the conclusion of his testimony, it was expected that the inquiry into the general Shenandoah wreck investigation would be concluded, and that the court would proceed to the examination of the reports from the bureau of standards concerning tests made from specimens of material taken from the wreckage.

The captain gave specific denial to the charges made against him by the widow of the Shenandoah's commander. He also declared he never had received any suggestion or communication from Secretary Wilbur, or any other superior officer as to Mrs. Lansdowne's testimony. He had no communication with Secretary Wilbur concerning the Shenandoah inquiry, he said, from the day of his appointment as judge advocate up to last Saturday, when he formally asked to be relieved of that office because of Mrs. Lansdowne's charge.

Mrs. Lansdowne was the only witness he had personally interrogated before appearing on the stand before the Shenandoah court, Captain Foley said, but he added that he had communicated with the survivors of the Shenandoah through the senior surviving officer as to what the proceedings would be.

He had not interviewed either Anton Heinen, the German dirigible expert, and Col. William Mitchell, he said, because newspaper statements by them had developed fully what they intended to say on the stand.

"Mrs. Lansdowne had not been summoned as a witness," he added. "She was appearing at her own request."

JANITOR HAD CLOSE CALL
GETTING OUT

Will Resume School in Halls When New Books Arrive

(Telegraph Special Service.)

Paw Paw, Ill., Nov. 19.—The Paw Paw district school which housed both the grade and high schools, was destroyed by fire of an unknown origin early Wednesday. The loss to the building and equipment, is estimated at about $50,000 and is partially covered by insurance. There is no school for the remainder of this week and beginning Monday, the high school students will be cared for in the I. O. O. F. building and the grade school scholars will be accommodated in the Methodist church.

Janitor Had Close Call

Fred Gunderman, janitor of the school, was quarantined from his home and had been staying in the basement of the school in the boiler room. He was awakened in the early morning hours and discovered the ceiling of the boiler room was on fire. He opened the furnace door and succeeded in reaching a chimney but was overcome by the smoke and fell to the floor. He recovered and crawled out of the room in an effort to reach the fire hose in the building, but was driven back by the flames which appeared to have spread to every part of the building, and was successful in locating the door and escaping from the burning building. He fell overcome just outside the door. Most of his clothing was consumed by the fire.

The school was in two sections and was of brick structure. The original building was erected in 1897 and about a year ago, a sum of $20,000 was expended in the construction of an addition, which brought the school up to a rating as being one of the finest equipped in the county.

Books All Burn

Because of the fact that practically all of the students' books were consumed by the flames, it was necessary to dispense with studies until a new supply of books can be received with which to start over. It was expected that these would be available as that studies could be resumed in the temporary quarters Monday morning.

Navy Officer is Murdered in West

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Lieut. Nathan Green, engineering officer on the destroyer Moody and the son of Grafton Green, a justice of the Tennessee supreme court, was murdered here early Sunday morning.

A naval court of inquiry reached the conclusion that the officer had been a victim of foul play after an investigation which ended last night. The lieutenant was drowned on the route between the Hotel Del Coronado and North Island while returning from a party.

The court of inquiry made no announcement as to the direction in which the finger of guilt pointed and further revelations awaited arrests.

Lieut. Green's body was found ashore at Spanish Bight, an arm of the bay between Coronado and North Island. The belief was expressed that he may have been thrown from a bridge crossing Spanish Bight while he was returning to his state room on the destroyer Moody stationed off North Island.

John H. Byers in Talk Before Lions

The Dixon Lions Club listened to a stirring address by the Hon. John H. Byers at their meeting yesterday. Mr. Byers is preparing to assume his duties in Washington when congress convenes two weeks hence so he was fired with plenty of enthusiasm and eloquence. Mr. Byers encouraged the club in its activities and urged it on to greater and better deeds for Dixon.

E. A. Snapp and Walt Spindler, designated as Douglas and Lincoln, respectively, took part in a heated debate on an old, old question. The latter indulged in a little quick make-up and Pete McCoy pulled a very clever stunt.

A report was made on the street marker survey. The club made plans to journey to Sterling next week for the Sterling Lions' charter presentation program.

Mrs. H. W. Emmitt of Evanston is spending a few days in Dixon visiting with friends and is staying at the Nachusa Tavern.

HARVARD AGOG
OVER INSULT TO FOOTBALL SQUAD

Charge That Thirt, Players Were "Half Drunk" Disproved

Boston, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Harvard today was assag over the expulsion of thirty members of its varsity football squad, three days before the annual battle with Yale from the lobby of the Tremont Theater.

Head Coach Robert T. Fisher who termed the incident the "dirtiest, lowest insult" he ever knew, will conduct a rigid investigation to determine who charged the squad with being "half drunk" as they entered the theater lobby last evening.

Last evening the largest mass meeting ever held in Cambridge, accompanied by snake dances to the dormitories, was staged by the students. From the rally the football squad went directly to the theater.

Ordered Them Out

Joe Crosby slipped on the tiled floor and the other players began to jest with words. Manager Sheehan of the theater interfered and ordered the lobby policeman to eject them.

The gridiron men became indignant when the officer ordered them out. They say he charged them with being "half fried." They took the matter to a nearby police station where a captain and lieutenant inspected each man.

"They are sober, all right," was the police verdict, "but we can't do anything about it."

Coach Fisher, when told of the affair, said:

"For any one to think that a Harvard player would be drunk three days before the Yale game is absurd on the face of it. I know every man on the squad like a book. I consider the whole thing the dirtiest, lowest insult I ever knew to be paid, and a rigid investigation will be made to determine the responsibility for the charge."

W. C. T. U. Asks For More Enforcement

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—(AP)—An energetic campaign for enforcement and observance of the prohibition law was urged in recommendations adopted today by the national W. C. T. U. convention.

The convention recommends to its half million membership, a study of national, state and municipal enforcement laws, a study of the courts and of objections raised as to prohibition.

The convention believes that "by correlating the necessity for total abstinence with the promotion of public health, efficiency, child welfare, the safeguarding of the home and the fundamentals of the law" final enforcement can be reached.

VICTIM OF ASHTON
ACCIDENT WAS NOT
BASCO, ILL., MAN

Holding Body at Ashton Waiting to Hear From Possible Relatives

Coroner F. M. Banker of Franklin Grove conducted an inquest over the body of the stranger who was instantly killed by west bound passenger train, No. 13 on the Northwestern right of way about a mile east of Ashton Tuesday. The inquest was held at the Stephan furniture store at Ashton at 10:30 yesterday. Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber testified before the investigation and practically identified the remains as those of a man who applied at the police station Sunday evening and gave the name of Pete Johnson and his residence in Omaha, Neb.

The chief of police in talking with the aged man Sunday evening, learned that he had relatives at Stanton, near Red Oak, Iowa, where an uncle owned a farm. At the close of the inquest yesterday a telegram was dispatched to the sheriff at Red Oak but at noon today no response had been received. The remains were being held at Ashton until tomorrow, awaiting the possible receipt of word from relatives of the dead man or information from the sheriff at Red Oak.

Members of the engine crew of the passenger train which struck the man were present and testified. Engineer Todd told the jury that the man was walking, head down, between the rails of the west bound track and that a freight train which was pulling out of Ashton on the east bound track, together with the stranger's deafness made it impossible for him to hear the warning whistle of the passenger train which was coming at a high rate of speed. The engineer also stated that one of the man's legs was caught in the pilot of the engine when he was struck and that he was dragged some distance. His head probably struck the end of a tie, crushing it to a pulp. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to injuries sustained in being struck by the train.

Not E. H. Bryant

This morning an Associated Press message from Quincy stated that E. H. Bryant was a resident of Basco, Ill., near that place. A bank book bearing the name of E. H. Bryant was found in the dead man's clothing and was the first clue found by which it was thought might lead to his identity. The message from Quincy stated that Mr. Bryant visited in Ashton last summer and at that time lost his bank book. From this it is presumed that the stranger found the book in Ashton, he having been in the city about the noon hour before going to the railroad yards.

Geo. Downing Funeral
on Saturday Morning

Coroner Frank M. Banker conducted an inquest into the death of George J. Downing at the Preston chapel yesterday afternoon, the jury rendering a verdict finding that death was due to an embolism contributory to the fracture which he sustained Oct. 5. The attending physician testified before the jury stating that evidence of the embolism became apparent about ten days after the accident and had reappeared on several occasions.

Funeral services will be conducted from the residence, 112 North Galena avenue, Saturday morning at 10:45, Rev. George C. Story, of St. Luke's Episcopal church officiating and with interment in Oakwood.

Henry Ford Invites
Maine Fiddler for a Visit to Dearborn

Norway, Maine, Nov. 19.—(AP)—"Mellie" Dunham, seventy year old champion fiddler of the state of Maine and a farmer, has been invited to visit Dearborn, Mich., expenses paid, and play for Henry Ford.

Three weeks ago Mellie stopped making snowshoes long enough to go over to Lewiston to play in a pageant of the State Armory. This won him the title of Maine champion and a silver cup. New England papers duly chronicled the fact. Henry Ford read about it and wrote his invitation which Mellie accepted. Mellie has been making snow shoes nearly all his life. He made those which Peary's men wore when the North Pole was discovered.

Charles Bush, 15, and Frank Abrams, 17, who were brought back to Dixon from Ohio last summer for the theft of Harry Pumphrey's Ford touring car, were released from the county jail this morning. They were placed aboard a train at noon and started on their way to the home of their parents at Pittsburgh, Pa. Attorney Martin J. Gannon, who represented the boys, entered a plea of guilty in the county court and after the payment of the costs in the case, the lads were admitted to parole by Judge William L. Leech.

Amboy Man Paid $1000
Fine and was Released
—Health is Bad

Lemuel B. Searls, for many years a resident of Amboy, gained his liberty from the county jail late yesterday afternoon, where he was serving a sentence of 60 days for the violation of the prohibition law. Through his attorney, John P. Devine, who filed a petition for parole with Judge Wm. L. Leech in the county court yesterday, a hearing was held at which time Dr. J. B. Werten and Dr. W. H. Pack, both of this city were present and testified.

The physicians gave a brief history of the condition of health of the aged prisoner, enumerating "hardening of the arteries, intermittent heart action and fainting spells as making him unfit for detention in the county jail. It was pointed out that the confinement was detrimental to his already weakened physical condition and might serve to hasten his death."

Paid $1,000 Fine

L. B. Searls was fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail upon a plea of guilty in the county court on Oct. 21, when he was brought into court on an information charging possession and sale of intoxicating liquors. It was his second offense and Judge Leech attached the jail sentence to the heavy fine. Upon the payment of the fine and costs yesterday afternoon, Judge Leech ordered that Searls be released from the county jail because of the recommendations of the physicians and placed him on parole for a period of 60 days.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Each year J. Ogden Armour, millionaire packer, grants twenty hunting permits allowing society members of Lake Forest to shoot game in his 2,000 acre estate, Melody Farm.

But there will be no hunting there this year.

A score of society women armed with shotguns went rabbit and squirrel hunting on the estate yesterday. Mr. Armour's butler went along to help bring in the game.

Instead the huntresses brought back the butler. He had been shot in the back by one of the nilmuds.

Last night, Mr. Armour cancelled all permits.

The cows were locked in their stalls and perished together with three horses, two hunting hounds, several pigs and eighty chickens. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

Saturday morning at ten o'clock, on the Dixon H. S. Athletic Field, the Nelson S. S. boys' football team will make its third trial to win from a boys' team of the Dixon Christian School. Both previous games have resulted in a 6-0 score in the Dixon boys' favor. This game, however, may be different, since two of Dixon's leading players will be out of the game; and in the second game the Nelson lads showed great improvement.

Wm. Ortiguesen is captain of the Nelson squad, and Arthur Teeter of Dixon's.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Major John L. The commissioner said he was positive Grange had not signed any contract.

BULLETIN

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten football commissioner, today asserted that if Harold Grange signed a contract to play professional football before Saturday a game between Illinois and Ohio State, he would be ineligible and would not be permitted to play. The commissioner said he was positive Grange had not signed any contract.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—In a statement attested before a notary public, E. P. Albertsen of Kokomo, Ind., manager of a theater, declares he has seen a contract between C. C. Pyle, theater man, and Harold "Red" Grange. Albertsen formerly was publicity man for Pyle. His statement made at Kokomo and sent to the Champaign News Gazette follows:

"On Wednesday, April 7, 1925, I met C. C. Pyle of Champaign at the Roberts Hotel, Muncie, Ind., where he was in connection with buying a theater and for the purpose of raising capital for a professional career for Harold 'Red' Grange, football star of the University of Illinois at Champaign and during our conversation, Pyle told me that he needed a press agent and that I was the man he was looking for but before agreeing to accept the offer, I saw a contract between Pyle and Grange. When I mentioned this to C. C. Carrell, 1406 North American Building, Chicago, he said that he also had seen the contract and that it was legally correct in every detail."

Name Was Sold

"Mr. Pyle and Red Grange entered into a business agreement with Mr. Carrell of the King syndicate, for a series of stories on the life of Grange. This deal, however, did not go through at the time on account of Pyle not taking out more money than the syndicate offered. The offer from Harpden was $1,000 cash and $100 for each story. The deal went through later but I was not present at that time. Red Grange's name was sold to the Evinrude Company for advertising purposes and his picture was taken with one of the Evinrude motors. This was during the time when Grange was training with the football team at Champaign. Later Grange's name was sold, with his consent, to a firm manufacturing athletic sweaters. This deal involved $100."

"The contract with Grange reads that he is to get 45 percent of all income in connection with his name, the rest to be split between Charles C. Pyle and Dedy Moore, former manager of the Orpheum Theater at Ch

Wall Street Review

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Initial transactions in the stock market today reflected a conflict between supporting orders and short covering on one side and a renewal of selling pressure on the other. Buying orders were thrown in for several influential stocks bringing about advances of 1 to 3 points in U. S. Steel, General Electric, U. S. Rubber and Chrysler. Failure of the Bank of England to change its discount rate partially alleviated speculative fears that the local federal reserve rate would be advanced today although recent credit warnings unquestionably tempered operations. Buying however, became general in the subsequent dealings and short coverings accentuated the recoveries in many issues. A resumption of the advance in standard rails helped to restore confidence.

Early gains of 2 to 4 points included American Can, Sears Roebuck, Dupont, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Mack Trucks. Foreign exchanges opened firm, with demand sterling unchanged at 4.84 1/2 and lire strengthened by the announcement of a $100,000,000 loan for Italy. Heavy profit taking forced motors back sharply. Chrysler went down to 19 1/2, Mack Truck 217, General Motors 125 and Hudson 96, these being from 1 to 4 1/2 points below yesterday's close. Rails held well and when Chesapeake & Ohio went up 3 points to 116 1/2, the highest at which these shares have ever sold, prices elsewhere began to mend somewhat. General Electric and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe rose 6 points. Atlantic Coast Line also advanced 4 points. The renewal rate on call loans was reduced to 4 1/2 percent.

A PLEA FOR THE BOY

Every man who has succeeded, after a hard fight without any initial capital to start on, knows how much simpler and quicker it would have been if he had had a little ready cash.

That is only one of the reasons why every boy should have a thrift account, so that when he starts out for himself, he will have a better chance than his father had.

Open a share account in this association—for the boy. Give him the advantages of our regular saving schedules, our unquestioned safety, our larger earnings.

There's rhythm and rhyme in the jazz of today, and the lively songs fill you with pep. We'll jump to our feet when they start in to play, and with vigor and vim keep in step.

It's good for the system to keep up the spirit that comes from a modern day song. We bubble right over whenever we hear it, and likely go smiling along.

But, nevertheless, it's a pretty safe guess, to remark that the songs of the old, still live in their part, pretty close to the heart, when the story is truthfully told.

The jazz has its place but it never can erase, all the love songs that folks used to play. There once came a thrill and it lingers here still, through the songs of our grandmother's day. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Entertained at Breakfast Yesterday

Mrs. Charles Chandler, Mrs. J. W. Stephens, Miss Caldwell and Mrs. Will Smith entertained with a special breakfast yesterday at 11 o'clock at the Guild rooms at St. Luke's church. There were forty guests who greatly enjoyed the well prepared breakfast. This was one of a series of "vanishing breakfasts," being given by different groups of St. Ann's Guild, to realize funds for the guild. Most breakfasts do "vanish" but it is said these breakfasts are so appetizing that they vanish sooner than the average morning repast.

DRESSING UP THE TURKEY—

Sweet-Potato Stuffing—1 cup soft moist bread crumbs, 2 cups finely diced raw tart apples, 2 cups hot cooked mashed sweet-potato pulp, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 1/4 teaspoons salt, pepper. This makes enough for an eight to ten pound bird.

Prune Stuffing for Poultry—2 cups coarsely chopped cooked prune-pulp, 2 cups finely diced tart raw apple, two cups dry bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 teaspoon mace. Combine the crumbs, prunes and apple; blend the spices in melted butter and mix all together thoroughly. Stuff the cavity and sew it up. This also makes enough to fill an eight to ten pound bird.

Cranberry Ice—1 quart cranberries, 2 cups water, 2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup lemon-juice, 1/4 teaspoon powdered cinnamon. Pick over and wash the berries, add the water and cook them uncovered for about 10 minutes or until the berries are tender. Strain through very fine sieve, add the sugar and re-heat. Then cool and add the lemon-juice and cinnamon. Freeze in three parts of ice or snow to 1 of salt, turning the crank for 10 minutes; then set it to ripen, and serve it in sherbert-cups with any meat course.

Spiced Cranberry Jelly—1 quart cranberries, 1 cup boiling water, 3 inch stick cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon mace, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup boiling water. Pick over the berries and set them to cook with 1/2 cup boiling water and the spices. Cover them and cook slowly until they burst. Strain them through a fine sieve, return them to the fire with the sugar, an additional 1/2 cup of boiling water and cook rapidly about 8-10 minutes or until the mixture jells.—From The Designer Magazine for November.

Mrs. A. F. Moore, the president of the club, then introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Franklin Snyder, Professor of English at Northwestern University.

Dr. Snyder's subject was "What Makes a Good Novel," and the speaker puts reading at the very top of the list of entertainments. For a book to be readable it must be three things—first, interesting; second, true to a high ideal; and third, well written. Dr. Snyder's most excellent lecture, had for its main motive, a plea for clean literature. He said that the so-called modern novel and play with their, so-called modern problem, presented with obscenity, have no place in our libraries, and no place in contemporary literature. Dr. Snyder thinks that if it is old fashioned to like clean literature, then he prefers to be old fashioned.

The program of the evening was concluded by the singing of two songs by Professor Ben J. Kietzman, principal of the North Dixon schools. These were "Invictus," by Bruno Huhn, and "The Requiem," by Homer, with "Mother Macree," as an encore.

The reception tendered Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Quincer by the congregation of the Bethel United Evangelical church manifested a heartfelt and happy welcome to the new pastor and his wife, who have just taken up their home and labors here, coming from Steelton, Pa., where Rev. Quincer was pastor of the Steelton United Evangelical church. Before going to Pennsylvania, Rev. Quincer was a pastor at Anna, Ill.

A short program was held in the auditorium of the church, a large number of the congregation being there to welcome Rev. Quincer and wife, and to assure them of their cooperation and best wishes.

Following the program, light refreshments were served in the basement, followed by a surprise on the new pastor and his wife in the form of a "Shower," a table being well filled with many useful articles. A social and "get acquainted" hour followed.

Rev. Quincer will reside at 616 East Morgan street.

REFORMED BILLBOARDS.

"Bigger, better billboards" might be a contradiction in terms. But a least outdoor advertising is to be better. Assurance is given by men who have power to make their word good. They are the billboard men themselves, assembled in national convention.

All the leading concerns engaged in the signboard business have agreed to do their best to make signboards less objectionable. Pictures and reading matter are to be censored by the industry itself, morally and artistically, and billboards are not to be forced upon purely residential neighborhoods or placed where they will endanger traffic or mar scenic beauty.

The industry has been influenced, clearly enough, by public criticism. It has come to a point where reform is good policy. Self-reform may forestall more drastic reform from without.

The public welcomes such evidence of good intent, and will cheerfully give the billboard people every chance to make their kind of advertising less objectionable. But the public itself remains judge of such matters, and public authority must have the last word.

COAL SCHOOLS.

Chairman Berry of the New York State Coal Commission is offering to establish soft coal schools or "demonstration rooms" in every borough of the metropolis, with experts in charge to demonstrate how soft coal may be burned in stoves, furnaces and fire places; how to start soft coal fires and how to keep them going.

This seems to have been made necessary by the reluctance of New York citizens to substitute soft coal for the anthracite which is becoming so high in price and so scarce because of the strike.

It is easy to sympathize with anyone who dreads adopting soft coal for regular use. Under the best conditions it is not a clean fuel.

On the other hand such demonstration ought to be welcomed. Along with learning how to use the soft coal properly, a good many ignorant householders, janitors and other fire-builders would learn a number of useful things about the scientific side of heating system. Women as well as men ought to know more than they do at present about proper fire-building, smoke prevention and elimination and fuel economy.

RELIGION FROM POLICE.

A police officer is usually expected to wield a club in literal enforcement of the written law—not to probe for the ultimate cause of crime and suggest fundamental remedies.

Richard E. Enright, police commissioner of New York City, isn't content to be merely a club-swinging. He frankly admits the crime wave, and looks beyond the actual criminal. He finds the cause of it in the state of mind of society as a whole, and proposes the same remedy that was advocated by President Coolidge.

"We must get back to religion," says the commissioner, "back to God, back to home life and prayer, back to the old home standards, back to personal supervision of child by parent, back to purity of standards of living."

"We must get away from irreverence for God, for home and for father and mother, away from irreverence for law, away from booze parties, petting parties, lascivious literature, false standards of life and all that lead to them."

Here, as every thoughtful person will probably admit, is the literal truth. And it puts the responsibility up to every individual instead of leaving it to the police, the clergy and the educators.

MOTOR TAX CUT.

The congressional proposal to cut the federal tax on motor cars from 5 per cent to 3 per cent is hailed with joy by nearly 20,000,000 automobile owners. It pleases especially the prospective buyer of a new car, for this tax applies only on purchases. The motor car manufacturers have all pledged themselves to pass along the saving to their customers. This should mean an average saving of $15 to $20 a car.

In view of the fact that automobiles are subject to more taxes, federal and state together, than any other form of property, a very good argument can be made for abolishing this federal tax altogether, thereby benefitting the average automobile purchaser to the extent of $40 or $50.

Perhaps the finest thing, however, about the proposed reduction, is the manufacturers' pledge of good faith. This example is one that might be followed more generally in industries benefiting by federal tax remission.

ETHER REGULATION.

Radio takes another step forward. A broadcaster in Dayton, O., has been fined for operating a radio station without a license and transmitting a false call by radio. This is the first case of the kind in America.

It represents progress because it means official protection of legitimate broadcasters from unauthorized broadcasters, and protection of the public from irresponsible meddlers.

Traffic in the ether is to be regulated, like any other traffic. It is a difficult and delicate job, but it can be done.

Yes, Christmas comes but once a year; but the enthusiastic celebrant can spend all year paying for it.

"Won't you sit down and listen to my story?" said Robinson Crusoe.

The Twins certainly were surprised when the man in the picture came to life and said that he was Robinson Crusoe, and invited them in to make him a visit.

They were still more surprised when he whistled and his man Friday came running. Also his dog, two cats and a goat appeared—and a large green parrot, which flew up on Robinson Crusoe's shoulder and sat there.

"Won't you sit down and listen to my story?" said Robinson Crusoe. "I have a lot to tell as I was on this desert island for a good many years after I was shipwrecked, and a lot of things happened to me here. I must have been the other day to visit. For, you know, I was rescued."

"I can't stay," said Mister Blue Cap. "I shall have to step out of the picture frame and go back to the picture gallery and pretend that I am a guard again—instead of a fairy. But the Twins may stay for a while. But where shall we go when our visit here is over?" asked Nancy.

"Oh, I'll come back and get you both," said Mister Blue Cap. "You can't stay very long, either, as there are other pictures to visit. All the picture people know you are here, and they will be looking for you."

He left then, and Robinson Crusoe and his black man, Friday, and the Twins, sat down in a circle—and their legs crossed Chinese fashion. The animals sat down, too, and listened to the story—as if they didn't know it all before hand! Even the goat stood by as if he wanted to hear it all over again, too!

"Now I'll tell you why I like to rest in a tree," said Robinson Crusoe. "When I was first shipwrecked on this island, I had no place to go, no place to sleep, no place to eat—nothing."

"I didn't know anything about the country, or what wild beasts might be prowling around. So I took to sleeping in a tree at night, so I would be safe. I made a bed of leaves and branches and fixed it so I could not fall out, and I got to like it very much.

"Afterwards I built a hut of saplings, and covered them with goat-skins, and around this I built a high-pointed fence. I felt safer then, of course, and stopped sleeping in a tree but I often come back to my island. Then I got up into my tree and live over the old times.

"Come and I'll show you my hut, where I lived for so long," he said.

So they all got up, and followed Robinson Crusoe to a place in the woods where a number of trees had been cleared away.

There stood an old tumble-down shanty of the oddest sort.

"Then they went inside and saw the queer, crude furniture and dishes Robinson Crusoe had made years ago. He also showed them his old goat-skin clothes and cap and even his old goat-skin umbrella and his churn for churning the goat's milk into butter.

"I was very lonely until Friday came to keep my company," he said. "Friday and my dog and cats were faithful friends. Also my parrot."

Just then Mister Blue Cap came back. "Say 'good-bye' to Mister Crusoe and Friday, children," said he. "The people in the next picture want you to visit them."

"Good-bye," said the Twins. "Good-bye," said Robinson Crusoe. "I think I'll crawl up into my tree again and watch for ships."

When the Twins stepped down the magic steps out of the picture, Mister Blue Cap closed the glass and turned the lock in the gold frame.

By this time Robinson Crusoe was up in the tree again. Gone were Friday and the animals. Everything was exactly as before.

—CONTINUED—

Mr. Prescott received a cable this morning which he doubtless relayed on to you, Leslie, stating that your mother and Mr. Whitney would be here on the twentieth of this month. That is one week from today. I am afraid she will be disappointed not to find you waiting her at the dock. However, I know your mother well enough to know that when Ruth's need is explained to her, she will wait until you can come back to her.

Leslie, every single day I see your husband I more and more realize how boyish he is! As he read me the cablegram from your mother he said: "Gee! I wish that Leslie would come home! Seems that I never wanted her so much in my life!"

Don't you worry, Leslie dear, he doesn't really need you. He just hates to think that he must have any social duties at all. With both your mother and Paula here, he knows he will have many calls upon him. Besides, you know that Mrs. Prescott, senior, is like the poor and always with us, and, to tell the truth, I think she is quite as welcome as the poor to most of us.

I read a little note in the paper yesterday, saying that your mother and Karl Whitney were expected very soon and there was a sly refer-

CONFERENCE TEAMS
READY FOR BATTLE
FOR PIE DIVISIONOnly Hope is to Beat Minnesota and Make Three Leaders

Chicago, Nov. 19—(AP)—Scrimmage ends today in the Western Conference which awaits the week end when the football title pie may all go to Minnesota, the only undefeated Big Ten team to date, or be divided among Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern as teams defeated only once each.

Michigan with only a field goal scored against it during the season, expects to depend on its forward passing to beat Minnesota at Ann Arbor. Penny Friedman, its quarter back, is doing the biggest share of the tossing. The Gophers are working to combat such an offense. They entrain today for Jackson, Mich., where they will work out tomorrow before proceeding to the Wolverine stronghold. Outside of Gary and Asher, the regulars are in fine shape.

Hill Stopped Up

The storied centering about Red Grange, Illinois captain and his probable future after he ends his collegiate career against Ohio State Saturday, is having an effect on Illinois morale. Grange has been absent from practice for two days while conferring with his father regarding his acceptance of offers to play professional football, entering the movies, sell real estate or write for newspapers.

The Buckeyes see a chance to end their season of mediocrity success by defeating Grange and his mates. Karow, full back star, is unlikely to play but the rest of Coach Wilce's regulars are in fine trim for an appearance before an expected crowd of 30,000.

Chicago is booming subs to supplant the regulars scholastically ineligible for the Wisconsin tilt. The Maroon crashing attack is not slowing up, and anticipating it, Wisconsin is striving to perfect a study defense. Neither team is taking chances likely to result in injuries.

Indiana is ready to give Purdue a warm reception when it invades Bloomington for the Hoosier homecoming and stadium dedication. Neither team has won a conference tilt but both are prepared for the hardest fight of the year. Indiana may handicap Purdue.

Notre Dame has three backfield combinations ready for Northwest. It being Coach Rockne's plan to use his shock troops in relays against the Purple. Northwestern, ending its most successful season in a quarter century, has its regular lineup ready to start except Fisher. Moon Baker, the principal Purple threat against Notre Dame last year, is the center of its offense strategy.

RICKARD LISTS ALL
CLASSES OF FIGHT
CONTENDERS IN U. S.Wills and Tunney Second to Dempsey—Spaniard
Third Choice

New York, Nov. 19—(AP)—Champions in every fist division are given three contenders from whom to pick an opponent for a title bout under Tex Rickard's direction.

The promoter, making public this list of logical contenders today expects it to furnish a basis for championship frays in most of the divisions in the ring of the new Madison Square Garden.

But in the heavyweight and middleweight ranks, the money demands of Jack Dempsey and Harry Greb must recede before they can be considered for anything but bouts in the larger arenas.

Rickard lists Harry Wills and Gene Tunney as the foremost American contenders for Dempsey's title, but creates a surprise in the choice of Pacino Uzcuduz, Spanish heavyweight, for third entry. In the light heavyweight class, now ruled by Paul Berlenbach, Rickard has placed Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., as the ranking contender and next to Delaney, Mike McTigue and Young Strubling.

Rickard accords Dave Shade the distinction of being foremost contender in both the middleweight class against Harry Greb and the welterweight division against Mickey Walker. Frank Moody and Jimmy Slattery are selected as Greb's other outstanding foes while Walker's other main rivals are considered to be Tommy Milligan, European champion, and Benny Leonard, retired lightweight king, who hopes to return to the ring.

Lists Sammy Mandell.

In the lightweight division in which Jimmy Goodrich is king, Rickard has named Sammy Mandell, Sid Terris and Luis Vicentini.

The featherweight champion, Louis Kaplan of Connecticut, who meets his outstanding challenger, Babe Herman, in the second attraction in the new Madison Square Garden on Dec. 18, will likely not be asked to fight again, but Rickard has named Johnny Dundee and Danny Kramer as other outstanding rivals.

Mickey Garcia (Bushey Graham), Abe Goldstein and Joe Lazarus are selected by Rickard as the logical contenders in the bantamweight division now ruled by Phil Rosenberg.

Rickard figures that Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles has the outstanding claim to the flyweight title. He also names "Newsboy" Brown, Frank Genaro and Ernie Jarvis as outstanding 112 pounders.

In the junior lightweight division, Rickard regards Steve Sullivan and Allentown Leonard as likely opponents for Mike Ballerino, the titleholder.

Meagre telephone reports from the isolated mountain town this morning, did not indicate that Dave Steele, sought as Morgan's slayer, had been captured after escaping from his temporary fort in the Citizens Bank to the mountains.

The men quarreled over an election in which Morgan's wife was defeated by two votes, to succeed him and in which Steele was a precinct official, armed factions taking up the respec-five causes of the two upon Steele's flight.

MANY INDICTED IN BEER SYNDICATE BY CHICAGO JURY

Twenty-four Individuals and a Railroad Named
by Federal Body

Chicago, Nov. 18—(AP)—Two indictments charging the Boston & Maine Railroad, as a corporation, and 24 individuals, including Police Lieut. Albert Winge, an alleged prohibition agent with conspiracy to violate prohibition were returned by the federal grand jury today in the beer syndicate inquiry.

Besides police Lieut. Winge, David J. Allen, Jersey City, N. J., multi-millionaire and former purchasing agent of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., three prohibition agents, Earl Curry, Raymond King and A. F. McCarthy, A. M. Kolb, a Chicago policeman, the Gilt Edge Beverage Company, a corporation operating a brewery at Lawrence, Mass.; W. T. Lamore, freight traffic manager of the Boston and Maine railroad, North Station, Boston, Mass.; G. W. Nicholson, general agent Boston & Maine railroad, Lawrence, Mass., and J. C. Reardon, chief clerk to Nicholson at Lawrence, were among those indicted.

Did Big Business

The syndicate for eastern brewers and politicians in cooperation with railroad employees and western police and bootleggers was alleged by the government to have done a business of as much as $500,000 a month in contraband shipments.

The indictments covered only the Morton Grove, Illinois angle of the Syndicate's operations, involving the seizure of five carloads of beer shipped from Lawrence, Mass., and delivered at the suburb on Sept. 9 last.

The three prohibition agents owed their indictment to the disappearance of three cars of the beer after the raid.

When U. S. District Attorney Olson took personal charge of the investigation, he indicated that high city officials, politicians, railroad men and police would be indicted, and the inclusion of only one police lieutenant in the indictment list today, it was indicated, did not preclude a possibility of further indictments.

Among the easterners, including brewery owners and employees whose addresses did not appear named in the indictments were:

Martin J. Hart, brewery owner; Thomas F. Walsh, brewery president;

Choir to Opera

Mary Lewis, after a successful debut on European operatic stage, has returned to America to win a place in American opera. Miss Lewis, a former Broadway show girl, got her early vocal training singing in the Methodist church choir in Little Rock, Ark.

Charles J. McCarthy, brewery clerk; Thomas A. Mowen, connected with a brewery John Grappman, brew master Oscar Gebbler, consulting brew master.

The others named were William Kelley, traffic manager, Chicago, formerly connected with a large mail order house here as traffic manager; Matthew Kolb, Chicago, saloon keeper; Theodore Kolb, Slater Matson, B. C. Thompson and William Scharf, Chicago, truck drivers; Albert Boernar, clerk for the New York Central Railroad and F. P. Corcoran, agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad at Morton Grove.

The resignation of J. L. McDowell, assistant district attorney who had handled the beer inquiry before the grand jury, led to various rumors of political interference with justice, and District Attorney Olson made it clear that the inquiry would take its course. It also was indicated that a number of indictments would be expected at the first phase of the affair and covering the Morton Grove case.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

There are two forms of diabetes, each marked by different manifestations. But for general purposes it is not important that those other than skilled physicians concern themselves with the difference between these forms, although diabetes mellitus, as one form of the disease is called, and to which the term diabetes is most commonly applied, is by far the more serious or the more important type.

Statistics would tend to show that this form of diabetes is more prevalent in towns and especially in cities than it is in more primitive communities. The use of an excessive amount of sugar in food is usually considered one of the causes of the disease. Overweight or obesity is supposed also to favor the occurrence of diabetes, although many who have studied the disease hold that excessive weight so often found among people suffering from diabetes is due not to diabetes but to the cause of the disease.

No age seems to be exempt, although diabetes more frequently manifests itself in men and women about 50 years of age. Men are apparently more subject to the disease than women.

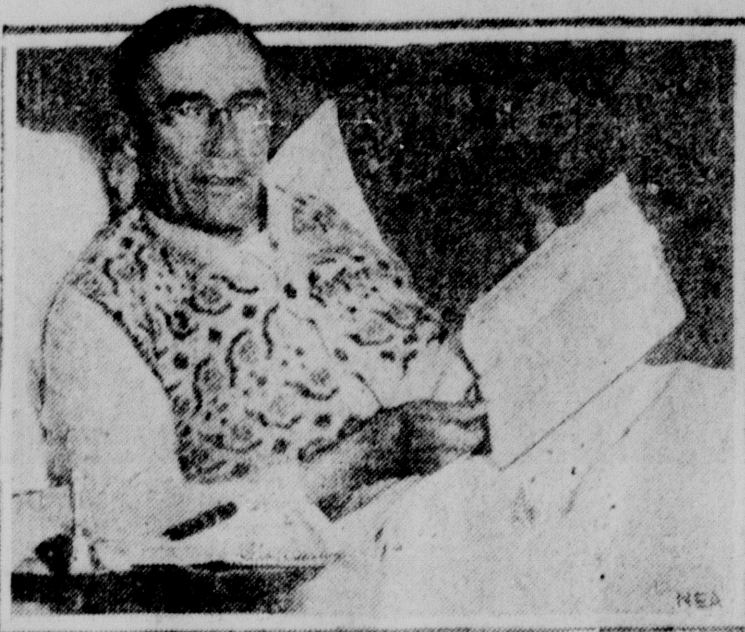

The symptoms of diabetes usually manifest themselves gradually. A patient may suffer for a long time before he realizes that it is necessary for him to seek medical aid. The first symptoms which attract attention are failure of strength, loss of weight and great thirst.

Sugar of quantity is found when chemical tests are applied to the body waste. The quantity of sugar passed may vary from a few ounces to two or more pounds a day and the sugar increases after starchy foods have been eaten.

Sugar may also be found in the blood, saliva and tears and in almost all excretions of persons suffering from the disease.

One of the most annoying symptoms which the diabetic experiences

Sick or Not, a Mayor Must Work

George E. Cryer, mayor of Los Angeles, hasn't time even to be sick! When he does get laid up the city goes on just the same, and Mayor Cryer runs it from his bed.

is that of intense thirst. The person usually consumes an enormous quantity of liquid and this thirst is frequently, although not always, accompanied by a voracious appetite. The mouth is often parched and a faint, sweet odor may be noticeable on the breath.

The effect of diabetes upon general health is very marked. There may be muscular weakness, a lowering of the temperature of the body, and the skin may become dry and hard. Frequently the teeth loosen and decay, the gums bleed. There is, in general, great mental depression or irritability. The diabetic usually feels "blue" and out of sorts.

As a rule diabetes advances gradually. This, however, may not be the case in young persons. The complications of the disease are many and serious. It may cause impaired vision; cataract of the eye is common in diabetes. Affections of the skin may occur, boils, carbuncles and gangrene are apt to occur as the disease advances.

Diabetics also would seem to be more susceptible to pneumonia, and gangrene of the lungs frequently sets in if the patient survives the crisis of pneumonia. Digestive troubles of all kinds, kidney diseases and heart failure are all common occurrences.

By far the most serious complication of all is that known as diabetic coma, which is very commonly the final cause of death. This coma may last from 24 hours to three days, but it almost invariably means that the diabetic will soon be beyond earthly troubles or medical aid.

The treatment of diabetes has developed and improved considerably in recent years. The basis of much of the treatment at the present time is initial starvation until the sugar disappears from the excretions. It may be necessary in such cases to continue the original fast for from two to 10 days. After the first long period of fasting, however, no subsequent fast need be longer than a day, as a rule.

While the principle of the new "Insulin" treatment may be understood by a person having diabetes, it is obvious that it can be successfully carried out only under the supervision of a competent physician. If you are suffering from diabetes, go at once to your family physician, the doctor in whom you repose the most confidence.

Place yourself under his care and scrupulously follow the advice which he can give you.

The result obtained to date would indicate that the insulin treatment is a very valuable aid in the treatment of diabetes. Its use, however, is not free from danger and it must be under the supervision of an attending physician.

New York—They call her Betty. I don't know her last name. She is a manicurist in a Times Square shop. She's a jolly sort, yet she seems to be very quiet and reserved.

The other day I noticed a medal on her dress. It was an award from the British government for distinction.

I asked her about it. "I was a nurse at the front," she told me. "If you were a nurse, why are you a manicurist now?" I asked her.

"I never want to nurse another case," she answered. "The last war case was my own brother. He died in my arms."

"I had entered a convent when the war came along. I gave up that life to go into service. I married a wounded soldier. I nursed him when everyone thought he would die. He is in an asylum now and the doctors tell me he will never regain his senses. Do you blame me for not wanting to be a nurse?"

Fortune telling is booming again, now that the gypsies have returned to town. Each fall they come rattling back in their flivvers from all sections of the country. They live in basement on the East Side. The women hang up phrenology charts and palm readings in the windows and grand dames from uptown come down in their fine cars to learn about their futures.

Palm readers and crystal gazers will foretell great fortunes to come but not so the phrenologists. Those who pretend to read by the bumps on the cranium will not foretell whether the subject will have luck in accumulating wealth. There is no lucky bump, the skull readers say.

There's no end to the ingenuity of Broadway advertisers. On Broadway there is a dress and cloak store on a second floor. Whenever there is some special occasion, which brings an unusually big crowd to the streets this store parades models before the windows and plays spotlights on them from buildings across the street.

This furnished a great spectacle on election night when the crowd in the street voiced its admiration or lack of admiration for the various models with loud tootings of horns. In some respects the show was bigger and better than the Follies.

CHAMPION HUSKERS IN ACTION TODAY IN NUBBIN CLASSIC

Corn Belt Title to Be Decided on Farm Near Burgess, Ill.

Burgess, Ill., Nov. 19—(AP)—Thousands of farmers from Illinois and Iowa were here this morning for the interstate corn husking championship to be held on a farm on the outskirts of this village this afternoon. Ten champion corn huskers from Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota and Nebraska with their pegs and hooks are ready to compete for the husking championship of the corn belt. The cool, snappy air of a late autumn day was ideal for the contest and helped swell the crowd. Preparations are being made to accommodate 10,000 visitors.

Burgess, Ill., Nov. 18—(AP)—Ten farmers, champion corn huskers from Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota and Nebraska, will compete here tomorrow for the husking championship of the corn belt. Following them in the tournament which will be staged on the Frank Cole farm, just at the edge of this village, will be between 5,000 and 10,000 eager rooters. While the band and organized cheering sections will be lacking, there will be as much interest in this championship shucking event as in any major athletic contest.

Rules of the Game.
The contestants will line up at 1 o'clock sharp. The rows which they will follow will be 8 rods long, and the men will take two rows at a time. A team and driver is furnished each man. Two gleaners, a judge and time keeper will follow each contestant. After time has been called, the corn will be weighed and deduction will be made for husks and gleaned corn.

The goal is to husk the most corn in the given time, free from husks and to leave as little corn behind as possible. For every pound of corn left behind, two pounds will be taken from the contestant's total. If he leaves over three ounces of husks per hundred pounds of corn, three percent will be deducted from his total. A perfect field awaits the contestants. The corn which will average about 70 bushels to the acre is standing well, and if the weather remains good, it is expected that some new records will be set.

Illinois Has Good Team.
Illinois' team in the contest is Elmer Williams of Toulon, Stark county and Walter Olson of Rio, Knox county. They won the right to represent this state in the big contest by winning the Illinois shucking meet at Hillsboro last week. Both are fast nubbins pickers, and both use pegs and work barehanded.

Leo Rettler of Keota and Fred Stanek of Fort Dodge will represent Iowa by virtue of winning state contests.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT

Attached herewith is the report of your Physical Director, E. A. Snapp, together with a special report on the recent financial campaign. Aside from the campaign the general program for the month has not been forgotten and if no other report were read on activities except that of the Physical Director, I feel that our work would be well worth while. Mr. Snapp has his work well in hand; he is doing an excellent piece of service. During the month, he started the bowling program which has far exceeded this month one year ago. Two outstanding features of his department are worthy to be mentioned. First, the program he is carrying on in the industrial plants; he has two classes each week in first aid and safety firsts. He has already had one industrial night at the Y. M. C. A. and has two set up for the coming month. The other feature is that throughout his program young men between the ages of 18 and 25 predominated. This is gratifying for this is the class that we have not been able to reach in the past and it is the class that in a few years will be carrying on the work of the Association.

The Toastmasters' Club, under the leadership of the new president, John Weiss, held five meetings during the month with a total attendance of two hundred nine.

The Ladies Auxiliary held four meetings, served six banquets, bought and paid for two new gas ranges, which are installed in the kitchen.

Our Boys' Band practiced each Wednesday afternoon. They played at the Kiwanis District Convention in Chicago, led the parade during the Safety First week and played a concert for the local Kiwanis Club. The band is doing splendid work under the efficient leadership of Earl Senoff.

The Conference Club held three meetings for Bible study, conducted two church services with Gospel teams and arranged for the distribution of one hundred New Testaments among the young men of the city.

The H-Y Club held five meetings with an attendance of approximately one hundred sixty. They assisted the Lions' Club during Fire Prevention Week.

Ladies' Day shows an increased interest. The gym, bowling and swimming classes have all more than doubled in number.

The Girls' H-Y has a membership of over fifty.

Three Junior boys scramble suppers were held with an attendance of sixty four. Inspirational talks were given at each of these suppers by some business or professional man of the city.

Fourteen meetings were held in the Association Building by outside organizations.

During the month the building was used by approximately 6000 people. In all our work these objectives have been constantly emphasized: First: A program of activities for boys and men of the entire city; second, the elimination of the causes of evil conditions which handicap the development of character; third, the bringing into existence and fostering the growth and development of those positive forces which tend to build up the individual as well as the community; fourth, the uniting of the Christian boys and men for winning others to the Christian life, enlisting them in service relating them to the church.

Our program for November includes the State Older Boys' Conference, organizing of a Junior H-Y Club and work for industrial boys, two gospel team services and two factory nights besides carrying on the usual program.

Build up resistance to cold weather with GOOD LUCK

Cold weather, with its icy winds, snappy temperatures and drifting snows, makes heavy drafts on vitality and energy. A richer menu then is needed.

Fat is the great energy restorer—the builder of resistance against exposure. Jane Eddington says, in the Chicago Tribune, that the mother who consciously sees that children get enough fat food in winter time is on the right track.

Send children out to brave winter elements sustained by sturdy menus in which GOOD LUCK is included. It is a fat food in purest form—an energy food for cold weather. The formula for GOOD LUCK is

Full Cream Milk—Wholesome
Beef Fat—Nourishing Pork Fat

These choice fats skillfully blended together produce a rich, wholesome food. GOOD LUCK has all the energy food values that center in these nourishing ingredients. Serve GOOD LUCK as a spread for bread to children to enrich their diet, restore energy, ward off winter's chill, and protect against the extra demands that cold makes upon the vitality. # This One-Prof It Unit-Built Studebaker offers you 3 major advantages in Quality, Price and Protected Investment

THE average man on the street today knows that through more efficient manufacture, standardization of parts, etc., all makers offer him more for his money than ever before.

All makers claim greater things for their product — and can prove them. All makers rest their case on more economical manufacturing due to quantity production under modern efficiency methods. All cars are fair value but there is a best value.

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines—yet one-fourth of the cost of an automobile is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies—yet one-third of the cost of a car is in the body.

Only two makers have adequate facilities for making all bodies, engines, clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings: Ford in the low-price field and Studebaker in the fine-car field.

One-Prof It Value

Because of its unique manufacturing facilities, Studebaker eliminates profits which all other quality car manufacturers must pay to outside parts or body makers. Savings effected in this way run to hundreds of dollars on some models. Thus Studebaker is able to use finest steels, finest woods, finest engineering and superlative workmanship in its cars; then to add costly extras . . . and still charge no more than competing cars.

Unit-Built Construction

One-Prof It facilities result, too, in Unit-Built construction. In cars designed and built as units. The hundreds of parts used in a Studebaker car are Studebaker. They function together as a unit, resulting in longer life, greater riding comfort and higher resale value for you. Scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation thus are built into Studebaker cars. Records of more than one hundred thousand miles are not uncommon.

And "No-Yearly-Models"

As a natural outgrowth of those two factors, a third great advantage to the buyer is attained . . . "No-Yearly-Models." Because all phases of manufacture are directly under Studebaker control, Studebaker cars are constantly kept up-to-date. Improvements are continually made—not saved up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete. Resale values are thus stabilized. As an example of the value One-Prof It manufacture makes possible, see the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

Studebaker's Lowest Priced Sedan—but all quality

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan illustrated below is a real four-door sedan. It is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass.

The equipment includes an 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, ash receiver, rear-vision mirror, stop light, dome light, safety lighting control on steering wheel, automatic windshield cleaner, coincidental lock to steering gear and ignition controlled by same key operating door and spare-tire locks, and full-size balloon tires. All instruments are grouped under glass on a silver-faced dial set in a beautiful walnut finished panel.

But the most important superiorities of this Sedan are concealed within the framework of the body and in the chassis.

Body pillars, for instance, are of northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for steels of extra toughness.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of its size and weight, according to the rating of the N. A. C. C. and the Society of Automotive Engineers. The motor is not built for excessive speed, but rather for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour. It is built for a long, quiet life—not for spectacular stunts.

We will gladly demonstrate this car and finance its purchase on Studebaker's fair and liberal Budget Payment Plan.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore, finding herself on a yacht in Long Island Sound after midnight, threatens to leap into the water to escape the menaces of one Pooch, who has rowed her out to the raft from the shore. Meanwhile, David Lacy, young New Yorker, is sailing in the company of "Doc" and "Docette," both strangers to him. Connemara was expected to announce her engagement tonight but, instead, stole out of Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home and disappeared. It's a night of adventures.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

"Different here!" said Mr. Pooch. "And I'll tell the cockeyed world I ain't gonna take no lessons to-night! Hop down off that rail and we'll talk matters over. I'm gettin' sick of this clownin'! Who in blazes are you, anyways?" "Will you put me ashore?" parried Connemara, still poised on the rail.

"Oh, be yourself!" grunted Mr. Pooch disgustedly. "Every copper in the wide, wide world is lookin' for us now, and it's a cinch you don't wanna meet no John Laws any more than I do! Who's that take cater which was with you on the ferry?"

"Who are you?" queried Connemara in turn.

"Me?" grinned Mr. Pooch. "Why, I'm the fifth horseman of the apocalyptic. Never mind who I am! Why don't you get sensible and land over that fifty thousand bucks and be done with it? You don't look like no Dumb Dora, why act like one? Your boy friend has left you flat on your car and Swede's gang'll be along any minute, so—"

"And that's that!" remarked Mr. Pooch lightly, tossing his weapon aside.

A faint hail over the water abruptly cut off Mr. Pooch's summing up. He stepped quickly to the rail beside Connemara, peering eagerly into the gloom with her. The hail was not repeated and, determined to guide any possible assistance to her, Connemara gathered her breath together and released a sudden piercing, "H-e-l-p!"

With a startled oath, Mr. Pooch clamped his hands firmly over her lips and tore her from the rail. Connemara desperately sought to free herself from his nauseating embrace, but this time Pooch held her tightly gripped in the crook of one arm, while his free hand began an exploration of her garments in search of the packet of bank notes. Crimson with rage and embarrassment, Connemara fought wildly, encouraged by a louder repetition of the hail from the surrounding murk. It seemed closer this time, and Connemara, squirming frantically away from Pooch, prayed that it was.

The thatch of red hair surmounted by the white cap of Mr. Pooch slowly rose over the hatchway. In one hand the little man held an iron bar and he hefted it speculatively as he surveyed the struggling pair, before stepping into the cockpit. His movements were deliberate and unhurried—he might have been completely detached from the picture. Part way over he even stopped to arrange neatly a protruding coil of rope. Mr. Pooch appeared not to see Mr. Pooch, doubtless believing him safely accounted for by the hatch padlock, for at Connemara's hopelessly eager glance at the little Scotchman over Pooch's shoulder, Pooch only laughed aloud, wrenching her wrist cruelly to restrain her struggles. Mr. Pooch advanced, still slowly, but strangely sobered, until within a few inches of Pooch's training back. Then Mr. Pooch coughed, rather apologetically.

"Eh—that'll be all o' that; stand away from the girl," requested Mr. Pooch.

"Take the air, you little rat—I'll slap you for a mock orange!" growled Mr. Pooch, too busy with Connemara to look around.

He should have done so! For without another word and as calmly as driving a nail with a hammer, Mr. Pooch raised his arm and the iron bar clunked on Mr. Pooch's head. Silently that gentleman sank to the deck at Connemara's feet.

"And that's that!" remarked Mr. Pooch lightly, tossing his weapon aside.

Amazement—and suspicion—momentarily overcame Connemara's gratitude. She stared at Mr. Pooch almost accusingly. "Then you—you are not intoxicated—you weren't when we came on board?" she murmured. "You were shamming! Why—"

"What—me drunk?" broke in Mr. Pooch, with a curl of his lip. "I never touch the stuff—eh—that is, I don't drink it!" He touched Mr. Pooch's inert body with a contemptuous toe. "And now, my girl, who's this swab and where's the chief?"

"Chief?" repeated Connemara vaguely. "What chief?"

"Don't stall, my girl; I heard his voice a bit ago, as I was kicking my way out of the after hatch. Where is he?" demanded Mr. Pooch sternly.

Connemara suddenly recalled the familiar voice that had called from the blackness over the rail of the yacht. She began to explain, but at that moment there was a chorus of yells from seemingly underneath the bows, a rending crash and then—silence!

"We've run some damned fool down—look over the side and see what you can see, while I stop the engines!" yelled Mr. Pooch and dashed away.

Feeling certain she was just a figure in somebody's nightmare, Connemara leaned far over the rail, straining her eyes at the sullen black waters. The throbbing of the yacht's engine had ceased, and the boat now rolled aimlessly on the waves as Mr. Pooch ran past her with a lighted flare in one hand and a life preserver in the other. Determined not to be left alone, Connemara summoned her nerve and cautiously moved forward. She reached the bow just as a drenched and bedraggled figure threw one leg over the yacht's side. At her involuntary exclamation the visitor from the sea halted in the process of boarding the yacht and stared at her, displaying a beautiful set of molars.

"Well, well, well—what a delightful evening!" smilingly greeted Mr. David Lacy, of hither and yon. "Fancy meeting you here!"

A helpless gurgle was the only witty retort Connemara could think of.

Lacy vaulted lightly to the deck, shedding water like a spanel.

"Where's Mr. Pooch?" he demanded.

Connemara nodded speechlessly to the rail. Mr. Pooch, fishing diligently with his life preserver, had evidently got a bite and was now hauling in with a will. Drawing near Connemara, Lacy observed her torn garments with a puzzled frown—then his eyes wandered to the prostrate Mr. Pooch, who was beginning to show signs of awakening. Shaking his head quizzically, Lacy knelt down and removed Pooch's coat, and, arising, tendered the garment to Connemara with a bow.

Connemara hastily buttoned it around her bared shoulders, while Mr. Lacy began to twist the water out of his own soaked clothing. "Well, what do you know—eh—Sister?" he inquired, with his winning smile.

"First, get some rope or something and tie that—that beast up!" commanded Connemara, finding her voice at last and gesturing to the recumbent Pooch. "He tried to—Oh, don't stand there looking at me. Tie him up or I'll do it myself!"

Lacy disappeared down a hatchway, returning a moment later with a coil of stout rope. Meanwhile Mr. Pooch had assisted aboard from the sea a burly gentleman and a lady. The lady collapsed gracefully to the deck and as Connemara ran to her with quick sympathy, the big man turned on the scowling Mr. Pooch.

"You rich boloney think you own the ocean, don't you?" he bellowed, shaking a huge wet fist under the little Scotchman's placid nose. "I got a good mind to knock you silly, you red-headed boob!"

Too Much Efficiency By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and hardware magnate, starting on a two months' business trip, arranged with a firm of efficiency engineers to manage his household during that time. His three grown children, however, are left without knowledge of this unusual arrangement. They are Constance, 20, the leader of the trio; her brother Billy, 22, and Alice, of high school age. One eventful evening they are shocked into the knowledge that one H. HEDGE, efficiency engineer, has taken control of the Brooke household, made himself at home in their father's suite and turned the library into an office. Only a few days have gone by since Hedge introduced the bag of scientific management to the Brooke home, but in that time he has obtained a declaration of war from the combined Brooke children and all the servants from the entrance man to Horace, the butler.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

And Christmas came with such silent and swift approach that the three Brookes were not aware until it was fairly upon them. Then they gasped at their own unpreparedness. Christmas was always a ceremony in the Brooke mansion, albeit an expensive one. But the Brookes were in poverty, even though they were admirably filled with the spirit.

"Well, what are we going to give each other?" demanded Alice, whose mind was normally of practical purpose.

"Greetings," said Billy, turning his pockets inside out.

Constance frowned. "At least we will have the usual tree," she remarked with dignity. "We have a few traditions left."

"Yes. We are strong on tradition," affirmed Billy. "But we are awfully weak on the other stuff. You can't buy anything with a tradition."

"Except happiness," "You can't buy ten cents' worth of that," from Alice. "We can't even buy a tree."

"E. E. can," said Constance. "He can buy anything—but he won't."

"Except a hat," Billy observed savagely.

Constance smiled reminiscently. She could not deny that the hat had been an achievement.

"Tut," she counseled. "Let's keep in the spirit, anyhow."

So, always in the spirit, they approached H. Hedge on the subject of Christmas.

"I do not approve of Christmas gifts," announced the efficiency man.

"There won't be many gifts," said Constance sadly. "But there is always the Christmas spirit."

"Yes? What is the Christmas spirit, Miss Brooke?"

Constance stared.

"What is it? Why?"

The efficiency man waited patiently for the remainder of the answer, but Constance had lost her voice in wonderment at the question. Alice answered at the question.

"A tree," she said.

"So you regard a tree as the Christmas spirit?"

"Symbolical," remarked Billy off-handedly, who was so pleased with the way the word rolled out that he said it again. "Symbolical."

Alice nodded.

"It may symbolize something," admitted H. Hedge, "but I do not approve of a tree."

The Brookes drew slightly away from him.

"We always have a tree," said Constance.

"And it is always decorated with candles and we always hang up our stockings," supplemented Alice.

"I have no objection to your hanging up your stockings," observed the efficiency man judiciously. "I cannot see that it does any harm, except to lend encouragement to a foolish myth and possibly to breathe the fallacy of expecting something for nothing. But as to a tree and candles—no."

"Well, it shows which way the wind blows," returned the efficiency man brutally.

He wanted to end the argument, and he succeeded. The three Brookes.

"What's the reason we can't have a tree?" demanded Billy.

"They're unsafe, for one thing. There is a liability to fire."

"We use electric candles."

"A waste of current. A tree also entails an unnecessary amount of cleaning in the house. Furthermore, it is wicked, because it represents an attack upon the natural resources of the country. The decorations that are placed on it are tawdry and without artistic merit. Such gifts as are hung upon it or placed under it are almost invariably foolish and unnecessary. The entire custom and practice relating to Christmas trees is wasteful and extravagant and serves no useful purpose. No tree!"

The Brooke children studied the creature who had thus developed a newly horrid aspect. Alice, still secure in her daily pittance, rallied.

"Very well," she said haughtily.

"That's all," he added. "You may go."

The Brooke children fled out of the library and went back to the gymnasium. Billy tapped his forehead knowingly.

The Brooke children fled out of the library and went back to the gymnasium. Billy tapped his forehead knowingly.

"Bimny," he said.

The three Brookes waited for H. Hedge to say something more about the party, and in vain. They were afraid to bring up the matter themselves, for fear of an argument and a clash that would lead to cancellation. They simply knew that invitations had gone out, for Horace mailed them. Who had been asked and who omitted they did not know; the efficiency man had possession of the social list and had used his own judgment.

"I hope he didn't forget to invite me," observed Alice, "so long as it's going to be in our house."

"He said it was our party," Constance observed, "although we don't seem to have anything to do with it. Still, I don't want anything to do with it, because he'll do what he pleases anyhow. This is his last chance, so far as I am concerned. He stands or falls on this party."

"He's been failing for so long that it doesn't seem to make any difference whether he hits bottom or not," complained Alice. "If he fell a million miles he'd still be here, I guess."

The Brooke children went for a long walk on the day of the party, returning only half an hour before dinner. They found the efficiency man in evening dress.

"You'd better hurry up," he said, glancing at his watch. "You'll have to dress before dinner."

"Before dinner?" echoed Billy.

"Isn't there lots of time afterward?"

"Dinner at seven; party at seven-thirty. Hurry."

Constance felt that she was going down in a runaway express elevator.

"You don't mean to say you've invited people here at seven-thirty?"

"If you will not get us a tree, I will buy one."

"You may buy it," H. Hedge informed her, "but it will not enter the house."

"I cannot bring my own tree into the house?"

"No."

"Why, we have always had a tree—right in this very room! You can't have Christmas without one."

"You can have the 25th of December without it, at any rate," answered the efficiency man. "That is what we will have—the 25th of December."

"Why—even the poor have trees?"

"Sure," were entitled to one," added Billy with fine irony.

"No tree."

"Just a little one!" pleaded Alice.

"No."

"Why, even the servants have a tree?"

"Do they? I'm glad you mentioned it," said Hedge, making a memorandum, the sinister character of which the Brookes understood.

"This is the very last straw!" cried Constance.

"Well, it shows which way the wind blows," returned the efficiency man brutally.

He wanted to end the argument, and he succeeded. The three Brookes.

Dismiss Suit Against Loeb and Leopold as Plaintiff is Jailed

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—With all the principals behind the bars, the $100,000 Chicago suit filed by Charles Ream, Chicago, against Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, was ordered dismissed yesterday by Judge Frederick A. Hill for want of prosecution.

The plaintiff is in jail in Iowa and the defendants are serving life terms in the penitentiary here.

Ream charges Loeb and Leopold with having mutilated him and claims that his injuries were such as to prevent him from working.

The defendants were not brought in to court.

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief? Why cutting and operations fail? Do you know the cause of piles is internal? That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel? Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonard and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle, and druggists everywhere, that is guaranteed? HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. Don't delay. Try HEM-ROID today. It will do the same for you.—Adv.

TWO BEEF CALF CLUBS IN OGLE CO. THIS FALL

Rochelle and Mt. Morris to Have Exhibits From Boys & Girls

Ogle county will have two beef calf club exhibits this year because two communities are conducting boys and girls calf clubs and have decided to hold their exhibits on different days. Saturday, Nov. 21, will be Calf Club Day in Rochelle while Saturday, Nov. 28, has been chosen by the Mt. Morris unit for their exhibition. This arrangement will give an opportunity for a large number of people to see the results of the boys' and girls' efforts for nearly a year in the feeding and fitting of these calves for the show and to take part in these community celebrations.

The clubs are sponsored by the Rochelle Chamber of Commerce and the Mt. Morris Ben Ezra club in co-operation with the Farm Bureau. Local committees in both communities are managing the club work programs. At Rochelle on Saturday, this week, twenty-five calves will be placed on public exhibition at the Eaton livery barn. The judging will be done by Prof. E. T. Robbins, Live Stock Extension Specialist, University of Illinois. After the awarding of premiums the calves will be paraded and the champion calf will be sold at auction. The rest will be shipped to Chicago to be sold at the calf club auction conducted by the Chicago Live Stock Exchange.

This is the first year of calf club work for the boys and girls of Mt. Morris who will bring together eleven calves and exhibit them on Saturday, Nov. 28.

The judging at Mt. Morris will be done by Mr. L. O. Wise, County Adviser in Whiteside county. Very attractive premium lists for both clubs have been arranged by the committees in charge, the money for the prizes having been contributed by merchants, bankers, farmers and farmers organizations in both communities. A silver cup given by the Chicago Live Stock Exchange will be awarded for the champion calf in the Rochelle Club and a gold medal given by the Chicago Producers will be awarded for the champion calf in the Mt. Morris club.

The club work in Ogle county is growing each year. It is hoped that next year a plan can be developed so that after the different local shows have been held the calves can all be brought together for a grand county contest.

Mendota M.E. Church Furnace

We have just finished installing a No. 8 A XXth Century Furnace in this Church, that was built in 1858. They have been getting along during the past few years with one Furnace and two stoves, heating most of the Church.

Our XXth Century Furnace is installed with a 21 inch Blower Fan that delivers 3,350 cubic feet of warm air per minute to the rooms to be heated. It is so installed that they can heat one or all of the rooms in basement or first floor.

This Church contains 85,100 cubic feet of space, while our XXth Century Furnace has a capacity of 110,000.

This Furnace has a 33 inch firepot and the castings are 6 feet and 4 inches high.

When you have a big job, a difficult job, a different job or one that does not heat or work; just come in. We like those kind.

There is a XXth Century Furnace built for every home, store, office building, church, school or the largest hall.

No job is too big or too difficult for us to handle. We like the big ones, they make us think, that is why we are in business.

We specialize in Warm Air Heat and will deliver any amount you may need or require, either with a gravity system or by fans, or blowers.
